

contents

foreword: letters from the trenches	7
part one: concerning aboriginal rights	17
i. aboriginal rights and human rights: some thoughts	17
ii. socialism and native americans: a theoretical parenthesis	25
iii. aboriginal rights are not human rights	37
vi. the emperor's old clothes.	72
part two: 50 years of struggle	79
i. 50 years in indian country	80
ii. inuit country	97
iii. the violence of the letter: land claims and the continuing colonial conquest	103
iv. towards a new policy paradigm for first peoples.	112
v. turning the page on colonial oppression: defenders of the land and idle no more!	118

part three: damned on this earth	127
i. flooded and forgotten: hydro development makes a battleground of northern manitoba	128
ii. the wolf has begun to howl: a report on the camp at grand rapids.	134
iii. how to build a legacy of hatred	140
iv. as long as the money flows...	148
v. marginal comment on another new building in downtown winnipeg.	156
postscript: bush culture for a bush country	157 sources	171